1920. France is licking the wounds of war. The survivors want only to forget their four years of hell but Irene (Sabine Azéma), a high-class city lady, is still searching for her husband, François. Her quest takes her to the bureau in charge of locating and identifying killed or missing servicemen, headed by Major Dellaplane (Philippe Noiret). As any hope of identifying the bodies dwindles daily, Dellaplane is faced with the task of choosing the unknown soldier, while also confronting Irene, who still hopes to recover François' remains. As they grapple amid the ruins and corpses, they come to realize that passion and life are still theirs for the asking.
