Émile Dutilleul lives an orderly, uneventful life, contained within the parameters of his job in a big insurance company, and his old apartment in Montmartre. He doesn't even remember what love feels like. One fine day, Ariane, a new colleague who is as full of life as he is devoid of it, starts working at the desk opposite him. That very night, he discovers that he can walk through walls. An adaptation by Marcel Aymé with lots of twists and turns...
